Leading Democrats Satisfied With Cleveland-Randall Coming Out for the Speakership-Cholera Precautions.

General Grant Feels Now as If He Was Going to Get Better.

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY

Generally Approved by Democrats.

WASHINGTON, April 15, - The cautious manner in which the President is proceedin the distribution of patronage is very generally approved by the Democratic leaders in the house during the night, and he and here. True, there are complaints being made in some quarters, but these come from disappointed office seekers. Prominent Democratic Senators and Members with Sentinel correspondent has spoken, generally express satisfaction with the policy the Administration. Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, speaking of the President at a dinner party this evening, said: "I am very much pleased with the President. He is pursuing the right course in not turning everybody out at once. Some people who ere finding fault do not appear to understand that the Presideet has to consume a great deal of time looking into the claims of applicants for office. I feel sure that before many weeks more a great many important changes in the several departments here and among the Feueral officials of the States will be made, and the offices will be filled by worthy men of the Democratic persua-

Kandall After the Speakership.

Washington, April 15 .- A few weeks ago the friends of Mr. Randall indignantly denied that he would enter the race for the Speakership of the Forty-ninth Congress. To-day they say that he is going to contest with Mr. Carlisle, and claim that when the members elected to the next Congress 'stand up to be counted" that a majority of them will be on the side of the great protectionist. The boast is made that the ex-Speaker will have the support of President Cleveland but this is denied by the friends of the latter. who say that the President's influence in the Speakership fight will in no way be felt; that it is his intention to hold himself aloof from all such matters, and that under no. conditions will he, by word or act, throw his preference for either of the two leaders. Mr. Carlisle's friends are confident of his election, whether he is opposed by Mr. Randall or any one else.

Rufus Magee, new Minister to Norway and Sweeden, to-day qualified and got his instructions from the President and Secretary of State. He will leave for his post about the 1st of May.

without foundation.

He Had a Good, Long Steep, With a Smaller Dose of Morphia, Last Night-He New Thinks He Will Get, Better.

New York, April 15, 9 a.m.-General

Grant has enjoyed a refreshing sleep of eight and a half hours. His pulse is 74, and of fair volume. Temperature normal. He is inclined to be cheerful and chatty. He has at present no pain in his throat, nor has he suffered from any during the night. Colonel Grant at 8 o'clock last night said he believed his father would enjoy a quiet, easy night. When the night nurse left the house between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning his report of the night proved that Colonel Grani's forecast had been verified. Dr. Shrady remained the family slept while Colonel Grant remained with the night nurse. Senator Chaffee was the first visitor of the day. He resaid only six minims of morphine had been condition was better than it had been for ten days, and Senator Chaffee had no immediate apprehension. Dr. Newman scalled at 10:15. At 10:30 C. Romero, Secretary of the Mexican Legation, came out of the house. He did not see the General but was informed that after a good night's rest, the General was then sitting in his room. He saw Mrs. Grant, who said the General was quite cheerful. Mrs. Jesse Grant stated that the General was easier, but he was not gaining strength, just about holding his own She did not see any great change in his condition from that of the last few days. She hopes the statement would be verified in relation to the General taking an outing, but thought it was rather premature to talk of. The matter of his removal, if he survives till the fine weather, was not definitely settled.

When Dr. Shrady left General Grant's house, after the consultation to-day, he said, in answer to a question, that the general condition of the patient was improved.

"How do you account for this general improvement?" was asked. "The General's bad attacks have been caused by complications associated with the usual progress of the disease," was the an-

"These have been overcome for the pres ent, and of course he is better. The temporary irritation in the throat has been relieved, and the result is what the bulletins have stated." "And do the bulletins state everything?"

was asked. "The bulletins deal with the plain facts, and with the facts only," responded Dr. During the consultation this afternoon General Grant said to his physicians: "The doctors outside, I am informed, are writing about my case and talking about it, and some of them seem to think they know more about it than you gentlemen do; but it is like a time of war, when the men at home think they know more about it than the Generals who are on the field fighting." That the public may be enabled to thoroughly understand the case as it is and form reliable opinions, the following absolute facts are given as a basis for public and personal judgment: General Grant is not greatly emaciated about the body. He has lost some flesh, but how much can not be told, as he has not been weighed in some time. His face is not much charged, but has a careworn appearance. The glands are swollen on the right side, and the swelling outside varies, as there is more or less swelling on the inside. The glandular swelling has at no time been larger than a hen's egg and from that down to the size of a pigeon's egg. It is located at the angle of the right jaw. It has never entirely dis appeared since it came months ago. The swelling is due, first to the irritation of the growth, and finally to the progress of the disease in the glands themselves. There is no positive evidence at present that the giands have become actively diseased though the presumption they are diseased. The disease does not extend to, nor affect any of the processes of the General's ear. There is | thought that the presence of the Princess, some danger of that, a possibility, but not a | and her ladylike graciousness to the people probability at present. It is not growing in | along the streets, was the element that congrowing in that direction. The disease is spreading very gradually backward into the back part of the throat, and behind the palate. It has communicated somewhat to the back part of the nose in front and above the palate. There is no lump on the tongue. It is an ulcer way back on the side of the tongue, a small ulcer. It has never been shown to its whole extent, but it is a small ulcer, irregular in shape and from a quarter to haif an inch in diameter. The discharge is composed of mucus, broken down tissue and some little matter-in other words it is muco pus. It exudes from an ul cerated surface, that includes the palate ducted from their thir y days' leave of ab. I the back part of the throat and the right side of the tongue. There is a chance for the general improvement of the patient by the temporary arrest of the disease. The atwould, in fair weather, be favorable to him. In all cancerous cases in the throat there are complications of irritation about the throat which might be called accidents of the disease, and it is these complications that have given trouble, rather than the steady progress of the disease. In this case those com crease of inflammations hemorrhage, and increases of flow of muons. Six drops or minims of morphia are given each twentyfour hours-just enough to control pain and induce slesp. Without morphia the pain would, at times, be unbearable. The General takes for food from one to two tumblerfuls of a mixture of beef extract and egg and milk every two to four hours, night | and day. He relished a little clam broth yesterday, as he relishes anything. The General usually reclines in his chair, attired in knitted underwear; on his feet knitted wool moccasins; a dark brown dressing gown, trimmed with silk, and belted with a heavy cord; over his lap is sprend a silk and satin quilt filled with down, while upon his head he wears a silk cap, which he has long worn to protect his head from attacks of neuralgia, Dr. Douglas will remain with the General to night, and a consultation will be held at 2 p. m. to-morrow.

11 p. m.-General Grant has been very free from pain during the afternoon and evening. His condition has not materially any accumulation of mucus. His pulse st

FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

Ireland's Royal Visitors Not So Triumphant in Cork as in Dublin.

A Terrific Riot in Cork Occurred Last Night, Lasting Several Hours.

ALARMING RIOT AT CORK.

The Police Surrounded and Beaten With Their Own Truncheons-Terrible Hand to Hand Fight.

Lendon, April 15 .- Up to this evening there was a feeling of relief in Government circles over the news from Cork, which all tended to show that the visit of the Prince of Wales to that city had passed off quietly, and had worked an unexpected amount of enthusiasm. Early in the evening the Government officials declared that the attempts of the Nationalists to organize an opposition mained nearly an hour, and when he left he | had resulted in a failure, and that the extent of the Loyalist,' demonstration was surprisused in twenty-four hours. The General's ing. This declaration was hardly uttered when the telegraph brought accounts of rioting in various parts of the city. and the reports are becoming more alarming every hour. As the open carriage containing the Prince was crossing Parnell bridge some one in the crowd threw an egg at his Royal Highness. The missile missed the Prince but hit one of the footmen behind the carriage and the crowd cheered. During the afternoon, a detective arrested a rowdy who was throwing stones at the Loyalists procession. A mob speedily formed and attempted to rescue the prisoner. The officer drew his revolver and fired, but without hitting any one, succeeded in taking his prisoner to a police court, where he was promptly released on bail furnished by the Mayer of Cork.

Early this evening the Nationalists held a mass meeting where inflammatory seeches were made, and latest London newspapers containing accounts of the royal progress were burned in a bonfire. After the mass meeting the Nationalists scattered throughout the city in parties numbering from fifty to 500 men. Doors and windows were smashed, flags and decorations were torn down and heaped upon blazing bonfires, and many gun stores were broken into for the purpose of arming the mob. Policemen when encountered singly or in small squads were attacked and beaten unmercifully with their own trancheons. In many cases the police rallied and charged desperately upon the mob. but they were invariably surrounded and repulsed.' The police then resorted to the free use of their revolvers and bayonets. It was hand to hand fighting of the most desperate sort, the police standing back to back and receiving and inflicting terrible injuries. At midnight the streets were practically in possession of the mcb. The policemen who remained uninjured could not attempt to do more than remain in their positions and fight on the defense. The belief at midnight was that the streets could not be cleared without the use of artillery.

The Riot Suppressed.

London, April 16, 4 a. m .- The rioting a Cort has been suppressed. Many arrests were made and the hospitals are full of wounded police and rioters.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

The Triumph of the Royal Visitors at Dublin Was Not Repeated in Cork,

CORK, April 15. - The Prince and Princess of Wales did not repeat their Dublin triumph in Cork. During their progress in the parade workmen and boys ran alongside their carriage and kept up the cheering to drown the hisses of the Nationalists, who lined the entire route and made continued hastile demonstrations. The conduct of the Leaguers aronsed the Loyalists to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and they made the streets echo with shouts of welcome. The wander is that there was no violent breach of the peace during the royal progress. It is quered Irish gallantry. The Prince of Wales displayed some feeling when he replied to the address of welcome presented by the Magistrates of Cork. The Prince and Princess soon after the conclusion of the procession departed for Queenstown.

Incidents of the Cork Procession. CORK, April 15 - While the Prince and Princers of Wales were being driven in today's procession, a Nationalist threw a vegetable at the royal carriage. The vegetable struck one of the footmen. Many stones were thrown by roughs at the people that followed and cheered the roval carriage, and the police several times fired at the roughs.

No injuries are reported. Immediately after the procession was over a meeting of the Cork National Lague was held. The meeting declared that the Loyalists' attempt to get up a fictitious demonproved a failure, and passed a resolution congratulating John O'Connor, who managed the hostile demonstrations, for the victory he had achieved for the Nationalist

THE ST. LOUIS TRAGEDY.

Movements of the Supposed Southern Hotel Murderer-Said to Be an English Baronet-Etc , Etc.

St. Louis, April 15.-Walter H. Lennox Maxwell, the supposed Southern Hotel murderer, purchased a through, unlimited ticket to San Francisco on Monday morning, April 6. He signed his name to the ticket before leaving. He left the same evening on the San Francisco Ratiroad, and was recognized on the train by two St. Louisians, who talked with him, and who saw him as far as Pierce

City, Mo. The inquest on the body of C. Arthur Preller, the victim of the hotel trunk mystery, which was to have taken place this afternoon, has been indefinitely postponed by the Coroner. He is waiting the following of the latest clues, and advices from relatives.

Antecedents of the Victim.

NEW YORK, April 15 .- The night clerk of the Hotel Belvidere thus describes C. Arthur Preller, the victim of the St. Louis tragedy: "He was a tall man of slight, lithe figure," said the clerk, "most gentlemanly and refined in manner. He had rather a Jewish cast of countenance, a prominent nose, curved lies, dark complexion, and ex-Cardinal Manning has decided not to visit | tremely black, curly hair, with a slight but very black mustache, and little mutton chop side whiskers. I would say he was thirty years old. He remained here just three weeks, leaving on March 24. I never saw any one with him during the entire time he remained with us. He was always on the rush, as if he had not a moment to spare, and he never came in or went out without quite a load of packages. He received a large mail every day. He was richly dressed and seemed to have plenty of money. When he left here, on the morning of March 24, his three great big trunks were sent through to San Francisco, while he carried two large hand satchels and several small boxes and bundles. Each of the trunks weighed at least 250 pounds, and was much too heavy to have contained clothing only. He took especial pains to prevent the porter from assisting in the packing and strapping of his trunks and only allowed him to come into his rooms after everything was ready for his departure. Then he came down to the office and told me to send any mail that might come here for him to the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia. I did send a number of letters there."

> Richard W. Owens, an Irishman, and an employe of E. J. Denning, who lives at 97 Clinton Place, was seen last night at 7 Seventh avenue, the place of meeting of the congregation of the Plymouth Brethren, of which Mr. Owens is pastor. His account of Mr. Preller, filled out by suggestions from another member of the congregation who knew him well, was substantially as follows: "C. Arthur Preller was the son of E. Preller, of London, a dealer in the higher grades of decorative print cloths and the finer qualities of embroidering silks. His brother and himself were also interested in the firm, and he traveled as its representative. He was of a retiring, almost; effeminate nature, a pure minded man and an earnest member of our order. He being a member of the Dalstone Road Assembly in London he was a good deal of an artist and musician, having music in his trunks, which he valued at $300. This was his third or fourth trip around this country, and he reached this city about March I with 3 x big trunks containing quite a little library among other things. He was about twentyseven years of age, but very young in appearance. He was of a contemplative cast of mind, caring nothing for society, and the lest man in the world to take up with fast companions. He dressed richly, but quiatly, and often carries as much as $500 about his person. He was of medium height and size, resembling a Creois in his features, and wore a dark mustache. I gave him a letter of introduction to the Rev. Dr. James Brooks, pastor of the Walnut Street Presbyterian Church, in St. Lonis. I know of no other person in that city with whom he would come in contact. He had no enemies, and the only trait which would bring him in contact with rough characters was a desire to explore the slums of a great city. When here I took him through the lower wards, and he was much interested in the missionary work being done there.

Mr. Preller had relations in Brooklyn, and was a man who told little of his affairs to others, and was almost childlike in his simplicity." Maxwell in San Francisco.

St. Louis, April 15 .- A special to the Post-Dispatch from San Francisco says: On receipt of a telegram yesterday from Chief-of-Police Harrigan, of St. Louis, the police here commenced to search for Maxwell, the alleged murderer of Prelier. Investigation developed the fact that a man answering to Maxwell's description arrived here on Satunday last and put up at the Palace Hotel. He only staid there one night, and it is believed that he sailed in the steamer City of Sidney, for Hawaii and Australia, which left here the next afternoon. Later developments, however, incline the reporters to the belief that the police are on his trail and an arrest may be looked for at any time. It transpired here to day that Maxwell, two or three days before the murder, was in great need of money, and that he attempted to pawn his watch and to sell his stereopticon apparatus and views, but failed. On the Monday following before he left the city he was known to have money, as he in-formed persons to whom he tried to sell
